Charitable IRA Rollover

Make a gift to the Jewish Community Foundation with your Individual Retirement Account (IRA).

The Charitable IRA Rollover allows individuals 70½ and older to transfer up to $100,000 from an IRA to a public charity (including the Jewish Community Foundation) without triggering federal income taxes today or estate tax in the future. If married, each spouse is eligible for the tax-free IRA transfer.

Please note: this legislation does not allow for funds to be transferred into a Donor Advised Fund. We encourage you to seek advice from your professional advisor before you make a charitable IRA rollover gift.

Donors may hear various terms relating to Charitable IRA Rollovers. A required minimum distribution (RMD) is the minimum amount one must withdraw from their IRA each year, generally when they reach age 72 (70½ if they reach 70½ before January 1, 2020). A qualified charitable distribution (QCD) is an otherwise taxable distribution from an IRA owned by an individual, age 70½ or over, that is paid directly from the IRA to a qualified charity.

Thus, the charitable IRA Rollover is a special provision allowing particular donors of age 70½ and above to make a QCD – a transfer of IRA assets directly to public charities like the Jewish Community Foundation – thereby excluding that amount from taxable income and counting toward their RMD.

It may be especially advantageous for donors to do this if:

1. You wish to make a qualified charitable gift from your IRA to reduce the value of future distributions you will be required to take in successive years.
2. You do not itemize your deductions and want an increased tax benefit for your giving.
3. You are interested in reducing the taxable portion of your estate (by reducing retirement accounts) and increasing the tax-free portion of your estate through cash, stocks that will get capital gains treatment, or other tax-favorable assets.
4. You want to support charitable projects and programs in your region.

Four ways to turn your IRA into charitable dollars for our community:

- A Designated Fund allows you to support the work of specific nonprofits.
- A Field of Interest Fund allows you to target charitable causes and interest areas you care about.
- A Scholarship Fund allows you to support college education for deserving students.
- A Community Action Fund helps address the community's pressing needs as they change over time.
